Met Her on the Street and Fired Two Bullets at Her, One of Which Passed Through Her Nose.

ENDEAVORED TO ESCAPE, BUT WAS EASILY CAUGHT.

Woman Says He Has Annoyed Her for Four Years and Constantly Asked Her to Return to Him.

William King, of No. 309 Third avenue, was arraigned in Harlem Police Court -day for trying to murder his young wife, from whom he had been separated four years. He met her in One Hundred and Twentieth street and, shouting Now your time has come!" opened fire on her with a revolver. He shot twice. one bullet passing through Mrs. King's nan dropped, and it was believed that she was dead.

Two detectives happened to be block away at the time and they started for King, who, immediately after the second shot, had taken to his heels.

After a short chase he was captured and Innded in the East Ope Hundred and Tweaty-sixth street station, where, later, Mrs. King was locked up to insure her appearance against him.

Mrs. King was not seriously wounded, but she says that was no fault of her husband, who, in her opinion, undoubtedly meant to kill her.

According to her story, she married King, who is a brass finisher and twenty-five years old, live years ago. They lived together only a year and then she went back to her mother. Since then he has annayed her constantly, begging her to return to him, but always meeting with a refusal. and Twenty-sixth street station, where,

After a brilliant social career she became the bride of Earl Russell in 1890. They began to quarrel soon after the wedding, and inside of a year she left the Earl. She became jealous of his male friends and sued him for divorce, but unsuccessfully. She brought another suit for divorce later and was non-suited. Then she sued for restoration of marital rights and again lost. She and the Earl continued to live apart and Lady Scott, mother of the Countess, published a book which caused a sensation in English society and was made the basis of a libel suit by the Earl. Lady Scott was severely punished.

The Effects of Opiates.

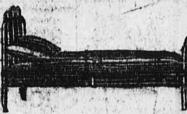

HAT INFANTS are peculiarly susceptible to optim and its various preparations, all of which are narcotic, is well known. Even in the smallest doses, if continued, these opiates cause changes in the functional and growth of the cells which are likely to become permanent, causing tions and growth of the cells which are likely to become permanent, causing imbecility, mental perversion, a craving for alcohol or narcotics in later life. Mervous diseases, such as intractable nervous dyspepsia and lack of staying powers are a result of dosing with opiates or narcotics to keep children quiet in their infancy. The rule among physicians is that children should never receive opiates in the smallest doses for more than a day at a time, and only then if unavoidable.

The administration of Anodynes, Drops, Cordials, Scothing Syrups and other narcotics to children by any but a physician cannot be too strongly decried, and the druggist should not be a party to it.
